PREFACE.

"Prefaces are great nastis of time, and though they seem to proceed of modesty, they are bravery" FRANCIS BACON

THIS book is a collection of what is quotable, as well as of what is quoted. Passages have not been included unless they have either proved their right by actual and effective quotation, or have seemed likely to be of general acceptability and usefulness, as "words which come home to men's business and bosoms." The method of arrangement adopted will, it is hoped, commend itself to all lovers of literature as preferable to the plan, sometimes employed in similar compilations, of "classification" under "subject" headings. The best classification is a very ample index, and in this respect "Cassell's Book of Quotations" will be found to be most thoroughly supplied. Many excellent handbooks of proverbs, and also of classical and foreign quotations, have already been published, but none, as far as I am aware, with a full verbal index.

I have to acknowledge considerable indebtedness to the volumes of that useful repository of literary research, "Notes and Queries," not only in regard to tracing many English quotations, but also in the elucidation of the origin of many proverbs and household words, and notable passages from Greek, Latin, and modern languages. This collection is, however, in every section, the result of careful personal research and reference, extending over a period of more than fifteen years. Perfection is not possible in such a compilation, because absolute completeness is not attainable. At least—and at most—this volume can claim to be more elaborate and more comprehensive, as a book of reference, than any of its predecessors, and I venture to hope that, whilst its main purpose is utility, it may also justify the saying of Emerson, "Neither is a dictionary a bad book to read."

A good parson once said that where mystery begins religion ends

Cannot I say, as truly at least, of human laws, that where mystery begins, justice ends?

A Vindication of Natural Society. The lucrative business of mystery Power gradually extirpates from the mind every humane and gentle virtue. Ιb

I have no great opinion of a definition, the celebrated remedy for the cure of this disorder [uncertainty and confusion]

It is a general popular error to suppose the loudest complainers for the public to be the most anxious for its welfare

To complain of the age we live in, to murmur at the present possessors of power to lament the past, to conceive extravagant hopes of the future, are the common dispositions of the greatest part of mankind

Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents

When bad men combine, the good must associate

Of this stamp is the cant of "Not men but measures", a sort of charm by which many people get loose from every honourable engagement

I remember an old scholastic aphorism, which says, "that the man who lives wholly detached from others must be either an angel or a devil" When I see in any of these detached gentlemen of our times the angelic purity, power, and beneficence, I shall admit them to be angels

Speech on Conciliation with America.
(March 22, 1775)

Refined policy ever has been the parent of confusion, and ever will be so, as long as the world endures

The concessions of the weak are the concessions of fear Ib

Through a wise and salutary neglect [of the colonies], a generous nature has been suffered to take her own way to perfection, when I reflect upon these effects, when I see how profitable they have been to us, I feel all the pride of power sink, and all presumpt on in the wisdom of human contrivances melt and die away within me My rigour relents. I pardon something to the spirit of liberty

Abstract liberty, like other mere abstractions, is not to be found

1b

All Protestantism, even the most cold and passive, is a sort of dissent. But the religion most prevalent in our northern colonies is a refinement on the principle of resistance, it is the disadence of dissent, and the Protestantism of the Protestant religion 16

SAMUEL BUTLER (1612-1680)

When civil dudgeon first grew high, And men fell out they knew not why Part 1, canto 1 Hudibras

And pulpit, drum ecclesiastic, Was beat with fist instead of a stick Ιb

Great on the bench, great in the saddle Ib

Which made some take him for a tool That knaves do work with, called a Fool

We grant although he had much wit He was very shy of using it Тb

Besides, 'tis known he could speak Greek As naturally as pigs squeak Ιb

[†] Tr of "Pervigilium Veneris," an ancient poem of unknown authorship

[†] Tr of lines "Inveni portum," &c , ascribed Burton to Prudentius He adds that they are by Burton to Prudentius on the tomb of a Christian soldier, Fr Puccius the Florentine, in Rome.

[&]amp; Tr of Euripides.

He could distinguish, and divide A hair 'twixt south and south-west side; On either which he would dispute, Confute, change hands, and still confute Hudibras. Part 1, canto 1	Fear is an ague, that forsakes And haunts, by fits, those whom it takes In all the trade of war no feat Is nobler than a brave retreat
He'd run in debt by disputation, And pay by ratiocination Ib	For those that run away and fly Take place at least o' the enemy Ib
For rhetoric he could not ope His mouth but out there flew a trope Ib	And, though thou'rt of a different church, I will not leave thee in the lurch
A Babylonish dialect Which learned pedants much affect Ib	He that is down can fall no lower * Ib Quoth she, I told thee what would come Of a'l thy vapouring, base scum Ib
For he by geometric scale Could take the size of pots of ale, And wisely tell what hour o' th' day The clock does strike by algebra Ih	He that is valuant and dares fight Though drubbed, can lose no honour by't 16
For every why he had a wherefore Ib	For truth is precious and divine, Too rich a pearl for carnal swine 10
He knew what's what, and that's as high As metaphysic wit can fly	Quoth Ralph, How great I do not know We may be being beaten grow,
Honour is like a widow, won With brisk attempt and putting on Ib	But none that see how here we sit Will judge us overgrown with wit 16
Such as take lodgings in a head	Synods are mystical Bear gardens Ib
That's to be let unfurnished Ib Such as do build their faith upon	Cleric before and Lay behind, A lawless linsey-woolsey brother,
The holy text of pike and gun And still be doing, never done,	Half of one order, half another 1h A sheep without, a wolf within 1b
As if Religion were intended	Learning, that cobweb of the brain,
For nothing else but to be mended Ib	Profane, erroncous, and vain Ib
Compound for sins they are inclined to By damning those they have no mind to Ib	But those that write in verse still make The one verse for the other's sake
As if hypocisty and nonsense Had got th' advowson of his conscience Ib	Fart 2, canto 1 Such great achievements cannot fail
The trenchant blade, Toledo trusty,	To cast salt on a woman's tail
For want of fighting was grown rusty, And ate into itself for lack	Fools for arguments use wagers Ib
Of somebody to hew and hack Ib	The fairest mark is easiest hit. Ib
For rhyme the rudder is of verses, With which, like ships, they steer their	I cannot love where I'm beloved. Ib Love is a boy, by poets styled, Then spare the rod, and spoil the child Ib
courses Ib A deep occult philosopher Ib	For what is worth in anything
A controversy that affords	But so much money as 'twill bring? Ib
Actions for arguments, not words Success, the mark no mortal wit.	And, like a lobster boiled, the morn From black to red began to turn Canto 2
Or surest hand, can always hit Ib	Which (were there nothing to forbid it) Is improve, because they did it Ib
So justice, while she winks at crimes, Stumbles on innocence sometimes Canto 2	Oaths are but words, and words but wind 1b
A skilful leech is better far Than half a hundred men of war Ib	For breaking of an oath and lying, Is but a kind of self-denying,
Ay me ' what perils do environ The man that meddles with cold iron	A saint-like virtue, and from hence Some have broke oaths by Providence Quoth Ralpho, Honour's but a word
Nor do I know what is become	To swear by only in a Lord Ib
Of him, more than the Pope of Rome Ib	Quoth he, That man is sure to lose
She had a thousand jadish tricks, Worse than a mule that flings and kicks. Ib	That fouls his hands with dirty foes, For where no honour's to be gained
Twas a strange riddle of a lady Ib	'Tis thrown away in being maintained. 16
Valour's a mouse trap, wit a gin, Which women oft are taken in. 1b	*See Bunyan "He that is down needs fear no fall."

BUTLER.

In being cheated, as to cheat, As lookers-on feel most delight
That least perceive a juggler's sleight, And still the less they understand.	_
The more they admire his sleight of han Hudibras. Part 2, Can	d to 3
Quoth he, In all my past adventures I ne'er was set so on the tenters	Ib.
'Twas a most notorious flam There's but the twinkling of a star	Ib
Between a man of peace and war Madam, I do, as is my duty, Honour the shadow of your shoe-tie	16
Part 3, can	to 1
For still the longer we contend We are but further off the end	Ιb
Still amorous, and fond, and billing, Like Philip and Mary on a shilling For 'tis in vain to think or guess	Ib
At women by appearances	Ιb
Women, you know, do seldom fail To make the stoutest men turn tail What makes all doctrines plain and clear	]
About two hundred pounds a year Nick Machiavel had ne'er a trick	Ib
(Though he gave his name to our old Ni	ck) 1b
Discords make the sweetest airs * Night is the sabbath of mankind,	Ib
To rest the body and the mind	Ib
So those who play a game of state, And only cavil in debate, Although there's nothing lost nor won,
The public business is undone Can True as the dial to the sun,	to Z
Although it be not shined upon The quacks of government (who sate	Ib
And obstinacy's ne'er so stiff	Ιb
As when 'tis in a wrong belief That neither have the hearts to stay,	Ib
Nor wit enough to run away Our last and best defence, despair,	Ιb
Despair, by which the gallantest feats Have been achieved in greatest straits	Ть
For Zeal's a dreadful termagant, That teaches Saints to tear and rant	Ib
For if it be but half-demid, 'Tis half as good as justified	Ib
The world is naturally averse To all the truth it sees or hears,
But swallows nonsense, and a he With greediness and gluttony	Ib
All countries are a wise man's home, And so are governments to some	Тb

For True and Faithful's sure to lose Which way soever the game goes Ib.
For those that fly may fight again, Which he can never do that's slain Canto 3
He that complies against his will, Is of his own opinion still.
For Justice, though she's painted blind, Is to the weaker side inclined
And Sleep, Death's brother, yet a friend to life,
Gave wearned Nature a restorative Repartees between Gat and Puss.
For he that writ this play is dead long since,

And not within their power, for bears are said

To spare those that he still and seem but dead Prologue to the Queen of Aragon.

WILLIAM CONGREVE (1670-1728)

You read of but one wise man, and all that he knew was that he knew nothing The Old Bachelor. Act 1, 1

One of love's April fools

I find we are growing serious, and then we are in great danger of being dull † Act 2. 2

Even silence may be eloquent in love We never are but by ourselves betrayed Act 3, 1

Thus grief still treads upon the Shar per heels of pleasure,

Married in haste, we may repent at leisure Some by experience find those words Setter nusplaced,

At leasure m arried, they repent in haste Act 5, 3

What rugged ways attend the noon of life! Our sun declines, and with what anxious What pain, we tug that galling load, a wife!

Act 5. 5 There is nothing more unbecoming a man of quality than to laugh

The Double Dealer. Act 1, 2.

Act 3. 3

That heart, which others bleed for, bleed for 16 The wise too jealous are, fools too secure 1b Wilful will do't, that's the word Act 4, 2 Music has charms to soothe a savage breast, To soften rocks, or bend a knotted oak * The Mourning Bride. Act 1. 1 By magic numbers and persuasive sound How reverend is the face of this tall pile. Whose ancient pillars rear their marble heads dcad ' To bear aloft its arched and ponderous roof, By its own weight made steadfast and immoveable, Looking tranquillity! Act 2, 1 Let me hear Thy voice-my own affrights me with its echoes Who calls that wretched thing that was Alphonso ? Act 2. 2 Given thee back To earth, to light and life, to love and me Death, grim death Act 2, 3 Thou hast a heart, though 'tis a savage one For what are riches, empire, power, But larger means to gratify the will? 16 Thou canst not mean so poorly as thou talk'st. П Life without love is load, and time stands stıll What we refuse to him, to death we give, And then, then only, when we love, we Error lives Ere reason can be born Reason, the power To guess at right and wrong, the twinkling Of wandering life, that winks and wakes by turns, Fooling the follower, betwixt shade and shining Act 3. 1

* Often misquoted "Music hath charms to soothe the savage beast." To which a well known poet and critic is said to have added, at a Guild hall banquet "Tis therefore welcome at a Lord Mayor's feast." See also Prior. "Music's force can tame the furious beast."

Love for Love Act 5, 2

My soul is up in arms, ready to charge And bear amidst the foe, with conquering troops. What do the damned endure, but to despair ? Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned. Nor hell a fury like a woman scorned Act 3, 2 Reproach cuts deeper than the keenest sword, And cleaves my heart Act 4, 1 O fate of fools! officious in contriving, In executing puzzled, lame and lost Act 5, 1 Clink of chains, And crash of rusty bars and creaking hinges Aut 5, 3 Hover a moment, yet, thou gentle spirit, Soul of my love, and I will join thy flight Ib Is he then dead ? Much have I travelled in the realms of gold

On first looking into Chapman's Homer.

Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When n new planet swims into his ken,
Or like stout Cortez when, with eagle eyes,
He stared at the Pacific—and all his men
Looked at each other with a wild surmise—
Silent, upon a peak in Darien.

According to a writer on "Samuel Foote" in the Quarterly Review, No. 190, Sept 1854, these lines were produced by Samuel Foote (1720-1777) at a lecture given by Chas Macklin (1697 t-1797), in which he stated that he had brough. his own memory to such perfection that a could learn anything by rote on once assume the Footes sentences were handed to could learn anything by rote on once assume the footes were handed to could learn anything by rote on once assume the footest with a could after them and after them from memory Macklin"

The memoirs of Foote of witticisms and mechanisms him, do not contain references

According to a correspond of or Mes and Queries (Nov 16, 1850), the 'f' The Incoherent Story' was Ja Qo' the actor (1698 1766) who is said to the land Foote a wager that he could speak some nonsense which Foote could not repeat off hand after him. The version given is as follows—

So she went into a garden to pick a cabbage leaf, to make an apple-pie of, and a she-bear coming up the street, put her head into the shop and said, "Do you sell any soap? 'So she died, and he very imprudently married the barber, and the powder fell out of the counsellor's wig, and poor Mrs Mackays puddings were quite entfrely spoilt and there were present the Garnelies, and the Gobilhes, and the Pieninnies, and the Great Pangen drum himself, with the little round button at top, and they played at the ancient game of "Catch who catch can," till the gunpowder ran out of the heels of their boots

The various memoirs of Quin do not contain any allusion to "The Incoherent Story, nor is it mentioned in the Memoirs of Mackin

There is an older and longer story, said to be "an old Irish tradition," and entitled "Sir Gammer Vans," which may have partly suggested the foregoing "Sir Gammer Vans' is too long to give in full, but the following will sufficiently indicate its re semblance to "The Incoherent Story" —

"Last Sunday morning, at six o'clock in the evening, as I was salling over the tops of the mountains in my little boat, I met two men on horseback riding on one mare So I asked them, 'Could they tell me whether the little old woman was dead yet, who was hanged last Saturday week for drowning her self in a shower of feathers? They said they could not positively inform me, but if I went to Sir Gammer Vans he could tell me all about it So he took me into his garden to show me the curiosities. And in the fourth [corner] there were twenty four hipper switches threshing tobacco, and at sight of me they threshed so hard that they drove the plug through the wall. Out sprung a covey of partridges I shot at them Some say I killed eighteen, but I am sure I killed thirty-six, besides a dead salmon, which was flying over the bridge, of which I made the best apple pie I ever tasted "
